

The New York World, one of the ablest as well as the most malignant of the copperhead journals in the country, has a lengthy article in last Monday's issue in which it discusses the availability of several gentlemen now somewhat prominent as candidates for the Presidency before the National Republican Union Convention. Regarding Mr. Lincoln as the most popular of them all, it says that the efforts of the State Legislatures and Union Leagues to bring him out thus early must "react powerfully against him if his Republican competitors had any approach to equality of strength as compared with each other. In that case, their common interest in his defeat would lead to a combination to put a common stumbling-block out of the way, and give an open field to the other candidates. But as the case stands to defeat Lincoln would be simply to nominate Chase; it is only the adherents of Chase, therefore, that have any interest in thwarting him. The impossibility of forcing a combination against him, makes Mr. Lincoln a very strong candidate; but the present demonstrations in his favor should not be counted for more than they are worth. This concerted movement of the legislatures and the loyal leagues does not render him independent of the nomination at the national convention; they only increase his chances of getting it. If the convention were to be called in March or April, Mr. Lincoln would be irresistible; if it is deferred till June, it may turn out that he has deployed his forces too soon and put them upon so long a march that they will have spent their strength before they reach the field of battle.

The World thinks the sooner the Convention is held the better for Mr. Lincoln. Next to Mr. Lincoln it sets down Chase as the most formidable candidate but he has no chance except in a convention candidate. Being a member of the cabinet he could not, in honor run against his official chief; certainly not if the regular convention of the party had put that chief in nomination. The utmost that the proprieties of his position allow him to do, is to try to carry the convention. Failing in that, he will be compelled to support a successful competitor. Mr. Chase will go into the convention with many drawbacks. The Republicans count a great deal on the army vote; but Chase is notoriously unpopular with the soldiers on account of his venetian turdiness in supplying money to pay them. He has powerful and indefatigable personal enemies in his own party. The most vigorous of these is General Cameron, whose motives in joining the present Lincoln movement are well understood. He wants to pay off old scores against Chase. No man in the Republican party, has more energy of character, and there are in the party but one or two more skillful managers. Those one or two are not against him. No man will go to greater lengths than he to compass his ends. With enough opposition to breast, and with little but his abolitionism to stand upon, Chase is just now at a discount. But still he is almost the only hope of the Republicans out against the Republican Ins. The thirst for public plunder may work wonders for him yet.

As for Fremont, the World regards his chances as worthless as a convention candidate, inasmuch as all the other party chiefs have long had a common interest in his political quack and burial. But it suggests that he has the natural elements of a strong and magnetic personal popularity, as is proved by his brilliant presidential campaign in '56, and by the fact that, despite all the efforts of Mr. Lincoln, to dwarf him, he has devoted personal followers. He is the only one of the Republican candidates who would have the moral audacity to run independent of a regular nomination. Against Chase as the regular nominee he would have no motive to run; but as against Lincoln, he would have the advantage of some military, qualitative and the sincere and hearty enthusiasm of the ultra radicals. In general character Fremont contrasts favorably with Lincoln in two respects: fearless promptitude in decision against Lincoln's timid vacillation, and intellectual and social cultivation against Lincoln's uncleanliness—the former helping him with the multitude who always do homage to boldness; the latter helping him with the cultivated classes, who are scandalized by lack of dignity in an exalted station. Fremont's adherents regard him as a great popular idol; who, because he is a popular idol has been made the victim of jealousy and injustice.

It says neither Butler nor Banks can run except as a convention candidate, at their only chance, even in that relation lies in the remote possibility of the convention getting into a dead-lock between Chase and Lincoln. In that contingency the Lincoln faction might be willing to compromise on Banks, and the Chase faction on Butler.

Such is the copperhead view of the situation as we do any other rebel extracts. It will readily be seen that Mr. Lincoln the very last man, whom the opposites wish to see nominated, and in that respect, they undoubtedly are right. And so Mr. Lincoln cannot be beaten if nominated; and the intimation of the World that Fremont might be induced to take the fight against him, is one of those wild hallucinations that sometimes result from the natural vagaries of the imagination.

FROM MADISON.

Editorial Correspondence.

Madison, January 23, 1864.

The memorial of Mr. Walworth's that I spoke of the other day, praying for a more vigorous prosecution of the war, and urging Mr. Lincoln to call for nine months' troops to take Virginia if not Richmond, was again brought to the attention of the Assembly this morning. It had been referred to a select committee of three, consisting of Messrs. Walworth, Hubbell and Abrams, but as they could not agree, they all made separate reports. Walworth's report urged its adoption. Hubbell submitted a report commending the patriotic spirit of the resolution, but expressing the opinion that the subject had better be left to the judgment and discretion of the President of the United States.

Mr. Abrams submitted a very long report against the memorial, criticizing that document very severely from a copperhead stand point. It was intended to be a very racy and original document, but fell far short of the mark.

Mr. Burton presented the report of the Surveyor General of Lumber District No. 2, (Black River.) The amount of lumber got out in that district during the past year was: logs, 15,000,000 feet; sawed lumber, 8,500,000; shingles, 12,000,000.

Bills were introduced by Mr. Osborn to change the name of Ella Elizabeth Darling. By Mr. McNitt, to legalize the proceedings of a special town meeting in Leeds. By Mr. Bachuber, to legalize proceedings of a town meeting in Theresa, Dodge county. By Mr. Sanborn, to legalize a special tax in Springfield. By Mr. Boutin, to repeal chapter 113 of laws of 1863, in regard to application of 5 per cent. fees on delinquent taxes in Kennebec county. By Mr. Pound, to amend act of 1861, regulating traffic in logs, by dividing lumber districts into three. No. 3. By Mr. Hubbell, to authorize the city of Watertown to provide bounties for volunteers. By Mr. Webb, relative to subpoenas issued by justices of the peace. By Mr. McNitt, to amend subdivision 1 of section 3, of laws of 1863, in regard to assessment and collection of taxes.

Messrs. Hildebrandt, Caswell and Colwell were appointed a committee to look into the mileage question, and report if anybody had overdrawn, or whether any one had not drawn enough mileage, (which is not likely.)

Some time was spent in committee of the whole on the general file, with Jones, Dodge, in the chair.

Mr. Roundy's resolution for information in regard to the number of agents in the service of the State now with the army was adopted.

In the Senate the following bills were passed:

To appropriate to Henry Cordier, State Prison Commissioner, $5,000.

To empower the county of Milwaukee to raise money to pay bounties to volunteers.

To provide for the construction of the Oshkosh and Wausau railroad; to authorize the town of Waupesa to aid in the same purpose.

To provide for the purchase of 200 copies of Webster's Dictionary.

To legalize a special town meeting in Mazomanie.

To amend the charter of the village of Elkhor.

To provide for summoning and empanneling juries in Door county.

To authorize the town of Oxford to raise money for paying bounties by tax.

To legalize the tax certificates in the counties of Marquette and Green Lake.

The assembly resolutions introduced by General Starks, of which I wrote you some length on yesterday, came up in the Senate in their regular order. A division was called for by Senator Wilson and the first resolution of the series adopted—5 to 5. It reads as follows:

Resolved by the Assembly, the Senate concurring. That as our country, and the very existence of the best government ever instituted by man, are imperilled by the most causeless and wicked rebellion that the world has ever seen, believing as we do that the only hope of saving the country and preserving the government, is in the power of the sword—we are for the most vigorous prosecution of the war, until the constitution and laws shall be enforced and obeyed in all parts of the United States; and to that end we oppose a amicable intervention, mediation, or proposition for peace, from any source whatever so long as rebels are found in arms against the government, and we ignore all parties, lines, names and issues, and recognize but two parties, patriots and traitors.

The second resolution was adopted—5 to 2. Frost and Clark. It reads as follows:

Resolved. That we hold it to be the duty of Congress to pass all necessary bills to supply men and money, and the duty of the people to render every aid in their power to the constituted authorities of the government in crushing the rebellion, and in bringing the leaders thereof to condign punishment.

The third resolution was adopted unanimously, to-wit:

Resolved. That our thanks are due and are hereby tendered to our army and navy for their gallantry in defending and upholding the flag, and our country and principles dear to every patriotic heart.

The fourth resolution reads as follows:

Resolved. That we recognize in Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States, a statesman of liberal and enlarged views, great ability, and unwavering integrity, and one who, if nominated by National Union Convention for re-election to the office of President, will receive the unanimous support of the Union voters of Wisconsin.

To this Senator Bowman moved to amend by striking out all after the word "integrity," and inserting as follows: "and the wishes of the people of Wisconsin as complied with by the National Union Convention that assembles to nominate candidates for the Presidency, Abraham Lincoln will again be nominated"—adopted, 19 to 11.

The resolution as amended was concurred in—20 to 11.

It will be seen that the amendment of Senator Bowman puts the resolution back in very nearly the language of the original resolution, before its amendment by Mr. Richardson.

The weather is very pleasant and our sleighing has gone south. A. M. T.

A Stroll Through the Capitol.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25, 1864.

Editors Gazette:—That magnificent structure, yonder on the hill, whose lofty dome towers high over the tallest city spires, is the national capital. It is an object of great interest, and should be visited by every stranger who visits Washington. The corner stone was laid by General Washington on the 18th of September 1793. History tells us that the ceremonies (which were Masonic) were of the most imposing character. The length of the building is 745 feet 8 inches, with an average width of 290 feet, and covers an area of over four acres. The building is surmounted by a lofty dome of cast iron, whose interior diameter is 96 feet, and which rises 300 feet above the grounds, the pinnacle of which is crowned by a colossal statue in bronze, representing the Goddess of Liberty. The capital grounds include about thirty acres of land, enclosed by a high wrought iron fence. The huge iron gates through which members and visitors pass on entering the grounds, are guarded by vigilant sentinels, to see that nothing improper passes through. The grounds are all that could be desired. Those on the west side of the building gradually slope towards the principal part of the city, and are adorned with a great variety of trees (whose branches, interlocking each other across the walks, cast a grateful shade all around, and thus invite visitors, who find this in summer one of the most delightful resorts in the city. Miniature flower gardens interspersed here and there, fountains of pure water, jetting their sparkling drops in the sunlight, lounges and rustic seats stationed at convenient distances, add to the attractions and the luxuries of the locality. But as I did not design to give a lengthy or a minute description of this edifice or its surroundings, we will pass on up the main walk to the west entrance, and from thence to the great rotunda, the centre of the main building and directly under the great dome. Here is a circular room, 96 feet in diameter. It is divided into eight panels, between which are found bas-reliefs of historical subjects, representing the preservation of Capt. Smith by Pocahontas, Landing of the Pilgrims, conflict between Daniel Boone and the Indians, and Penn's Treaty.

Immense Paintings occupy the several panels of various important events in the history of America. There is one peculiarity about this building. It is decidedly American. Every Engraving, Painting representing something of American history. But let us turn to the left and pass on to the Senate Chamber. We must ascend a stair way to the galleries, as visitors are not allowed on the floor of the Senate, without a special invitation from some Senator. This stairway, the steps and railings, like those of every stairway in the building, are of Tennessee marble. Its color is pink and white, or the conglomerate species, and looks for all the world as though it had been carved out of a huge "head-cheese." We will go around to the rear of the Vice President's chair where the gallery is partitioned off for the representatives of the Press. Here we can have a good view of all the members and hear what is said. The gallery is partitioned off also for other visitors. The east partition is for ladies, and gentlemen who accompany them. The west side for gentlemen without ladies, while directly in front of us, the section so gorgeously and elegantly fitted up, is for the exclusive use of the diplomatic corps and other dignitaries.

Upon the floor the seats of Senators consists of large chairs constructed not so much for ornament as for ease and convenience. In front of each Senator is his desk. These seats and desks are arranged in a semi-circular form facing the Vice President, whose seat is in the centre of the north side of the Chamber. The Senate Chamber is an interior apartment of the north wing of the Capitol, and is surrounded by other rooms. It is lighter above. The ceiling above consists of cast iron frame work, with skylights of ornamental glass, richly embellished with symbolic representations of the history and characteristics of the country. At night the Chamber is lighted with gas, the jet being placed above the glass in the ceiling thus throwing down a light as bright and mellow as the light of day. But as our time is short, let us look around. These walls have echoed the eloquence of the sages and patriots whose words and deeds have given our country its exalted position among the nations of the earth, and while we almost reverence the seats and desks occupied by Webster, Clay, Benton and other great men of the past, we must not be unmindful of the fact that there are those before us, writing and acting their own history, who will be held in the same high estimation by future generations as we hold their illustrious predecessors. Cast your eye to the left, occupying a seat in the middle tier, that little old man, with a prominent chin, long nose, sloping bald forehead, and keen eyes, is GARRET DAVIS, of Kentucky. With a heart full of bitter animosity and hatred for the sentiments of the majority, he often gives vent to his pent up rage in treasonable expressions and vulgar personal denunciations. He is restless, uneasy, and evidently writhing in mental agony at the present political prospects of the country.

in a political equality with the whites, it is an eloquent advocate of restoring the conquered rebels to a political equality with the loyal men, whose blood, treasure and bayonets have won them back. Talk about political degradation! Who but a copperhead would feel more degraded in occupying a seat on this floor with a loyal negro than with a whipped and pardoned traitor? But I must defer the subject to another time, both for the want of space and for the reason that my camera requires raining after taking the above picture.

THE TAX ON WHISKY.—The whiskey men are becoming desperate over the passage of the bill in the House increasing the tax on that article. The dealers pronounce it an ex post facto law, and declare their intention to contest it in the Courts if it passes the Senate in the present shape. One New York firm, which last year paid over $500,000 taxes on the article, and the largest dealers in the West, besides innumerable smaller dealers from different parts of the country, are here sworn to defeat its passage through the Senate.

A REPRESENTATIVE SECESSIONIST PARDONED.—The President has pardoned Mr. Giffith, one of the Arkansas delegation now here, who was a member of the convention which passed the ordinance for the secession of that State. The delegation will return to Arkansas this week, to arrange for calling a convention to bring back the State into the Union. Printed forms have been prepared by order of the President, to facilitate similar proceedings in other revolted.

A CARD.

Catarrh, Throat Diseases, Asthma, Bronchitis, Early Stages of Consumption, Liver Complaint, Diseases of Women, and all other Complaints that lead to Consumption, are treated in a new and eminently successful manner by Dr. HALE, who has a permanent office in the Myer's House, Jacksonville.

Catarrh and Throat Diseases always end in Consumption, hence the necessity of consulting a physician devoted to this specialty, before it is too late. Those who are not trying patent nostrums, or waiting for the disease to "wear off" should think, while it is yet time, of those who waited until ruin, and gone down to the grave full victims of Consumption. Many might have saved had they checked themselves while it was a Catarrh or Inflammation of the Throat.

All are invited to call and investigate. Dr. HALE's mode of treatment, practiced by no other physician. Consultation free.

Persons unable to apply at the office may consult by letter, when question lists will be furnished them to give an accurate description of their case.

WYNKOOP'S ICELAND PECTORAL.

Diseases of the Throat, Chest, and Pulmonary Organs are ever prevalent, infectious and dangerous. The properties of a medicine to alleviate, cure, and prevent these complaints, must be expectorant, anodyne and invigorating, loosening the mucus of the throat, and imparting tone to the entire system. No discovery in medical science ever mastered this class of diseases like Dr. Wynkoop's Iceland Pectoral. It is used with the most astonishing results in all cases of Bronchitis, Inflammation, Whooping Cough, Diphtheria, or Purid Secretion, Throat, Asthma, Croup, Croup, Colds, Nervous Irritability, &c.

The Rev. J. J. Potzger certifies—that I have used Dr. Wynkoop's Pectoral for several years, myself and in my family, for severe pulmonary complaints, and have recommended it to many others, and have never seen its equal."—Rev. J. J. Potzger, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Hundreds and thousands of important testimonials could be produced, showing its remarkable cures and that it never fails.

It is composed of pure Iceland Moss, Balm of Gilead, Peruvian Bark, Nicotiana, Comfrey, Marsh-mallows, and other invaluable experiments and useful ingredients. It is harmless, prompt and lasting. Invalids and sufferers cannot afford to neglect a cure. Every family should have it. It is remarkable for Croup. Full descriptions, recommendations and directions accompany each bottle.

HERE IS MY HEART.

Here is my heart—my God, take it; I have
I heard thee call and say,
"Come to the altar, child, but unto me—
I heard and will obey,
Here is love's offering to thy King,
Which in glad sacrifice I bring,
Here is my heart."
Here is my heart—surely thou wilt take it,
My God will surely take it;
Vainly and long I sought to make it pure,
To meet thy sacred eye and smile,
Corrupted once in Adam's fall,
The stains of sin pollute it all—
My guilty heart.
Here is my heart—my heart so sad and sore,
Now by thy grace made new;
Yet bruised and weary, it can only pour
Its anguish at thy feet;
It longs to stand before thee,
It sighs for salvation's joy to win—
My mourning heart.
Here is my heart—in Christ its longing end,
Near the cross it draws;
"I say, 'Thou art my portion, O my friend,
My blood was my ransom."
And in the Savior's love found,
What blessing can I ever want?
My trusting heart.
Here is my heart—ah! Holy Spirit come,
Its nature to renew,
And consecrate it wholly to thy home,
A temple pure and true,
To love and serve thee more,
To fear thee, trust thee, and adore—
My cleansed heart.
Here is my heart—it trembles to draw near
The glory of thy throne;
O'er the shining sea thy servants wear,
Of righteousness thine;
Its pride and folly chase away,
And thou art its life and true—
My waiting heart.
Here is my heart—O friend of friends be near
To make the lonely heart
And when my latest foe I wait with fear,
Give me the victory,
Glory in thy blood atoning,
Lead me, when I am dying,
To thy home, where I am dying,
"Here is my heart!"

Religious Miscellany.

"WHILE IT IS CALLED TO-DAY," is really all the time there is. That which is called "yesterday," is time no longer. While it was called "to-day," it was a reality; it was here; it was ours to use, to improve, to enjoy, to profit by; but since we began to call it yesterday, it is ours no longer. Indeed, it is a fact to-day, it is a fact of existence. All things were of it, and all we could make of it, was "while it was called to-day." Yesterday—last week—last year—these are but phrases denoting periods that existed only while they were "called to-day."

There is no such thing as to-morrow, and there never will be as a real entity, an actual matter of fact. "To-morrow" does not exist until it comes to be called "to-day." "To-morrow" is only a word—an expectation—not a reality. When it comes into being, it is not "to-day," and not at all to-morrow. Strive as we may, to peer into the future, we shall find nothing there, for there is nothing until it comes, and when it comes, and while it lasts, it is simply "while it is called to-day."

But to-day, in character and value, is very largely as the result of the departed and dead yesterdays. They in their succession, while they were "called to-day," were working out issues to give shape and coloring to what should come after them, and this present actual to-day bears the marks which they have left behind. And so to-morrow, when it becomes to-day, shall be greatly shaped by the mould which to-day is preparing for it. Who does not know this? yet how few seem to understand it!

The great art of life, then, is rightly to estimate and well to improve to-day. To-day is everything. "While it is called to-day," time and opportunity are here for all they are required of. But they are not—they linger not. To-day is fast dying into yesterday, and just ready to take its place with the dead and buried past. May the Great Teacher help us so to number our days that we may apply our hearts to wisdom "WHILE IT IS TO-DAY!"

WINTER THOUGHTS.

Do a little good at a time, and all the time. The Himalaya is ordered to put a new robe. The mighty vestment drop from heaven, and enclose the mighty ranges of her peaks? No! millions of little mounds of honor will come down, and each one contributes some little thread to weave the splendid robe. And by every one doing the little committed to it, the giant mountain stands robed in its celestial garments.

You organize a Sunday-school among neglected children, and go every Sunday, like a little snow-flake, to add present help to him to past. Keep on; that is the way Himalaya gets its robe.

No good is lost. Stop not to count your converts, to weigh the results of your labors; but keep on, like the gentle snow-flake after flake, without noise or parade. Parent, teacher, preacher, patriot, work on!

"Pleasant as the snow beneath the steam-beam, are all the enjoyments and gratifications which do not arise from the influence of religion, the exercise of the mind, and the feelings of the heart; if we cultivate these, we shall be enabled to enjoy a portion of that felicity which endureth forever—the sure reward of virtue and a well-spent life."

THE SINNER'S SECURITY.
Suppose a traveler in a stormy night should take up his lodging in some cave in the woods, where there is nothing but serpents and adders and other such venomous creatures, he because he sees them not, sleeps as soundly as if he were at home in his own bed; but when the morning comes, he sees the dangerous condition of his estate, and labors to get out of it as fast as he can.

BADGER!

1862! 1863! 1864!

GOOD! BETTER! BEST!

THE BADGER DRILL!

THE JESSUP DRILL!

R. J. RICHARDSON,

is now improved, and will hereafter be called the BADGER. The Badger possesses all the good qualities of the old drill, and many valuable improvements.

The feeding principle of the new drill is the same as the old, but the working arrangement is quite different, and very much improved.

The workman is made much better than the old drill. We will not claim that the Badger is better made than other drills, but will say that it is made by experienced workmen, under my own supervision, and am willing that it should be compared with the best drill made.

The frame is made of summer season white oak, from the forests of Indiana. The poles and rolls are cast from Jefferson county. The hubs, and other castings, from Northern Wisconsin. The chains are from Frederick, Germany. No pains have been spared to obtain the best material—the workman will show for itself.

To those who know the old drill it is only necessary to say that the Badger is like it—only better. To those who are not acquainted with the old drill, we would say that the Badger is more accurate in its feeding than any other drill introduced.

That it is lighter and easier for the team than any drill yet introduced into this market.

That it will distribute any kind of grain grown in this region. That it will Plant Corn in Rows or in Hills!

Any distance apart, from two to six feet.

That the Badger is warranted to perform, in a good and workmanlike manner, all that is required of any drill. In an trial, it does not perform, it can be returned to the manufacturer, and all damages will be paid to the purchaser.

In consequence of the large advance in cost of all kinds of material, the Badger must be sold at advanced price over last year.

Prices of the Badger for 1864:

9 Tooth Drill.....$75 10 Tooth Drill.....$80 12 Tooth Drill.....$85

Five dollars added for Gray Steel. Four horse drills will be made to order on short notice. Price of 12 tooth drill and seed, $125.
